Former Georgia Denounced by California Railway Commission—Is Accused of Gobbling $1,096,000.

San Francisco Cal., May 23.—Asserting that its order was made necessary by the "vandalism" of the United Railroads of San Francisco of upward of $1,000,000 by the corporation's former president, Patrick Calhoun, on the authorization of directors and stockholders, the California railroad commission gave reluctant consent today to the borrowing of more money by the United Railroads for the purchase of rolling stock.

To Watch Each Move. The commission instructed the company to report each move made in carrying out the order, advised that dividends should be suspended until the outstanding indebtedness is met and announced, that because the same stockholders who had authorized the direction of funds still were in control it hereafter will supervise the financial operations of the management.

In an opinion appended to its order, the commission said its auditor found that in August, 1912, the directors of the United Railroads had adopted a blanket resolution, approving all previous expenditures made by Calhoun, of whatever nature, and "placed the blame for the financial disasters that he might consider for the best interests of the company."

This same action was taken later at stockholders' meeting. Calhoun's $1,000,000 Note Worth $12. Following this, Calhoun's $12,000,000 withdrawal of $1,096,000 ostensibly for investment in shares of the Solano Irrigated Farms, a land-selling project, which afterwards collapsed. The commission said, however, it has no doubt that the money ever went into the Solano project. The $1,096,000 withdrawal has to show for the $1,096,000 in Calhoun's promissory note, which was listed in the company's books by Jesse Lillenthal, who succeeded him as president.

"This whole transaction is a fraud," wrote the commission, "and the directors who joined in this plundering which was the result of the financial disasters of the company."

Deal by Calhoun. Cleveland, Ohio, May 23.—Mr. Calhoun was made clear the docks of his company today by the railroad commission, which he had appointed to his own company.

The statement of the railroad commission in substance was that Calhoun had been "gobbling" the money, but I will not attempt to do so until I have read the report.

Spooners in Park Are Given a Ride to Police Station. Because of their alleged persistency in spooning at Piedmont Park, a young couple was sent to police station last night by Officer Mullen.

The police officer encountered the young couple in a secluded spot at the northern part of the park. He ordered them to leave, and when they refused, he took them to the police station. The couple were later released by Assistant Chief Jett under collateral of $10.75 each.

The lovers pretended to obey, but when they were released, they returned to the same spot. The police officer was again called, and this time he decided to send them to the police station. The couple were later released by Assistant Chief Jett under collateral of $10.75 each.

PREACHER DECLARES WOMAN IN MODERN GARB ON STREETS MAY BE VIRTUOUS, BUT THAT HE IS FROM MISSOURI.

Preacher Declares Woman in Modern Garb on Streets May Be Virtuous, But That He Is From Missouri.

The most scathing denunciation of modern dress of women that has ever been delivered by a preacher was heard last night by hundreds of people at the street meeting conducted by the Baptist religious campaign workers.

The women of today who dress in the indecent costume that are fashionable just now are the greatest menace to the nation and to the morals of America, said the preacher, declared Evangelist Wolfe.

The dresses which are worn by some of the women of Atlanta the streets stimulate the passions of men.

"I never see a woman on the street in modern dress who does not look like a prostitute," he said. "You may be a virtuous and respectable woman, but I'm from Missouri. I will believe it," he shouted.

FEARED THAT A CRISIS IS NEAR IN MEXICO CITY

Huerta Delegates Want Some Form of Provisional Government Before the Outbreak Occurs—Several Conferences Held by Mediators at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., May 23.—Twenty-five delegates of the Huerta government, who arrived here yesterday, proved to have been a day of intense activity. The mediators had expected to take a rest and begin work again today, but suddenly and without warning they were advised by the Mexican delegates that the situation called for prompt and decisive action.

The American delegates were notified by the Mexican delegates that the situation called for prompt and decisive action.

From the moment, shortly after noon, when it was officially announced that the Huerta government had decided to take a rest and begin work again today, until after the American delegates had gone back to the American Hotel, there was a state of suspense.

There was an atmosphere of suppressed excitement about every move made, both by the mediators and by the representatives of the United States and Mexico.

Mexicans Want Action. Speculation and rumors of all sorts as to the exact purpose of this sudden calling together of the entire mediation body were virtually set at rest when it was admitted that the moving center of the present dispute was the condition in Mexico, the taking of title and the threatened constitutional advance upon the capital. It was generally believed that the Mexican delegates had been called to the conference for the purpose of discussing the situation in Mexico City before the outbreak of a crisis in the capital.

There was an evident disposition to waive all special points at issue and to get together squarely and to effort to reach a conclusion. The meeting was held early in the afternoon.

WHERE WILL THE FIFTH REGIMENT ENTER CAMP?

Where and when will the Fifth regiment go into camp this summer? This question is exercising the officers and men of the regiment, as July 1, the usual month for the departure, and no orders have been received by the local military district probably to the Mexican situation.

Colonel Grizzle, Jr., of the Fifth regiment, admitted that there was an increasing number of men and officers asking for information, so that they could arrange their vacation both with respect to the least possible inconvenience to their employers and also with reference to their employment in the summer.

While the camp orders are issued from the office of the adjutant general, they really emanate from the division of military operations, and the several efforts of Colonel Grizzle to get information from the adjutant general, Nash, had to wait on "instructions from Washington."

A meeting of the officers has been called by the regimental commander of the Army for Monday night, and it is probable that camp will be discussed, but the real purpose of the meeting is to appoint a committee and outline plans for a local entertainment for the men of the regiment, to which their wives and families will be invited. In the past few months the regiment has been only enroute in street drills for the entertainment of the public, but now they are to be the center of the attraction.

The adjutant general, Nash, is giving the officers an opportunity to meet the division and adjutant general, and become better acquainted with the national guard, and to see how the boys spend their time while in the Army.

The election for major to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Lieutenant Colonel Walter C. Hendrix will come on Monday night, Capt. O. Palmer and Captain W. H. Lehigh are the candidates for promotion.

W. C. A. TO GIVE PAGEANT OF SPRING

Atlanta's most elaborate amateur pageant will be staged in the city theater next Saturday night. The pageant, which is the property of the W. C. A. association, produces the "Pageant of Spring."

For the past three months the program has been in preparation. Two hundred children, girls and boys, have been selected to take part in the pageant. The girls are to be in "flower" and "spring" costumes, and the boys in "spring" and "summer" costumes.

The performance will be beautifully staged. Special scenery has been constructed. The costumes are new and colorful, and the dance has been trained to technical and traditional accuracy. A feature of the show is Miss Betner's graceful "Dance of Spring," and will be a terpsichorean interpretation of Mendelssohn's Spring Song.

Miss Betner has made a close study of the subject of the pageant. She is a pupil of Louis Chail, of New York, who, for years, was director of the annual pageant of St. Petersburg. Much of the local pageant will be the original creations of Miss Betner.

Tickets for both performances must be reserved at the box office of the Atlanta. A record sale is expected.

MICHAELS TO CONDUCT SERVICE FOR THE DEAF

At St. Mark's church this morning at 11 o'clock there will be special services for the deaf conducted in sign by Rev. J. W. Michaels, evangelist to the deaf, with the Southern Baptist home mission board.

The deaf who attend the service will take part in it in hymn and recitation, and the entire service will be in the beautifully expressive signs used by the deaf and dumb. All the deaf and their friends are cordially invited to attend this special service.

SCANDINAVIANS CRYING FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Norway and Sweden May Join to Stop Encroachment by the Great Powers.

Christiania, May 23.—The western half of the Scandinavian peninsula, like the eastern half, has become agitated by the problem of national defense. The campaign for a strengthened armament appears almost daily to assume some new phase of popular interest, and it is believed that the common demand for protection against encroachment by any of the European powers may bring Norway and Sweden together again to the extent of a defensive alliance.

The Norwegian parliament has recently been popularly criticized for its recent failure in peace treaties. It has been conspicuous in the peace movement ever since it was entrusted by the late Alfred Nobel with the distribution of the Nobel peace prizes each year, and further, it has during the last seven years relied faithfully upon an integrity treaty signed by Russia, Germany, France and England, by which the neutrality of Norway should be strictly observed in case of European war.

The people of the Scandinavian peninsula—whether they be Norwegians or Swedes—have no thoughts of expansion, but want to be kept out of the political turmoil which during the last few years has agitated Europe. Fears that integrity treaties are worthless have become popular among Scandinavians since the Balkan war, when it was seen that Turkey profited little by its treaties, as guaranteed by the big powers. In a war between the triple alliance and the triple alliance, the Scandinavian peninsula, with its safe and excellent ports, might be of such value to any of the belligerents as to render the integrity treaties null and void. It is feared that Norway and Sweden might be drawn into the war.

Recognition of this is the moving factor in the talk of a military alliance between Norway and Sweden for mutual defense and protection of neutrality. Both nations are exercised over possible dangers from the east. It is believed, however, that no European power at war with another would be able to detach enough of its military forces to operate against a well fortified Scandinavia without exposing its own ports and frontier to the enemy.

It is evident that the people of Norway are inclining more and more to this view, and it is doubtful if the cabinet, which is not yet alarmed by the political situation, will be able to resist the general call from the people for strengthening of the defense, larger appropriations for the army and navy, better fortifications of the forts and longer military service.

Parliament recently has lengthened the service in the navy from eight to a year to a full year, and a bill for longer service in the army, which now is 144 days, is in preparation. There is general demand for more service in the army, and all the parties except the socialists have declared their willingness to bear heavier military burdens.

The centennial of Norway's constitution, which will be celebrated this year, will give an impetus to patriotic ideas, resulting now in one hundred years of Norway's independence. The own resources and power of Europe are being called upon to defend the nation from the attack of the great powers. The general feeling which has been kindled for increased armament is such that civic organizations and many kinds of private individuals are subscribing toward funds. Ladies' societies particularly are busy everywhere collecting money, and numerous local organizations are planning to buy military supplies for their special districts, and banks and business houses are giving of their last year's profits to the defense.

A patriotic zeal, something like the stamp used in tuberculosis campaigns, to be placed on mail, printing, and other things, is being seen. The words, "I will defend my land," are being used on many things, and the money to go for defense. The churches also have been taking up collections for the same purpose. Everybody appears willing to offer something for the security of the country, except the socialists, who are against any kind of military preparations. The other parties, however, are confident that in case of war even the socialists would be ready to join the ranks of citizens in defense of Scandinavia.

TO VACCINATION LAW GERMANS ARE OPPOSED

Widespread Objection to Being Compelled to Submit to Treatment.

Berlin, May 23.—A discussion in the Reichstag has just shown that there is widespread opposition in Germany to compulsory vaccination. On a motion a commission composed equally of friends and opponents of vaccination for the purpose of studying the whole question, party lines were completely obliterated, and the motion failed only by a tie vote. It was brought forward in answer to numerous petitions for a change in the present law, which has been in force for forty years.

The anti-vaccinationists claimed that outbreaks of cases occur when health is injured by the practice, and it was shown that thirty-two deaths were thus caused in Prussia in 1912. They further asserted that managers of stations for obtaining lymph from calves have themselves admitted the impossibility of getting a pure lymph in all cases. The German law does not provide for compulsory vaccination, but the police authorities have everywhere construed it as giving them the right to require vaccination, and when it becomes necessary they use compulsion. The representative of the anti-vaccinationists, however, said that there were cases where compulsion was necessary.

A socialist speaker claimed that some parents have been punished five or six years for refusing to let their children be vaccinated, and some of them were sent to prison. He added that thousands of people in Germany, he added, have to act contrary to their conscience in having their children vaccinated, and the example of 25,000, where a conscience clause was adopted some years ago, was held up for imitation by Germany. He pointed out that in small towns where practiced so extensively as in the country, and Dr. Kirchner, of the imperial health office, answered all this by displaying a statistical table showing a reduction in smallpox cases since the present law was passed.

Even the man who is liberal to a fault is usually stingy with his wife when the cooking isn't bad.

As a general thing, if our appetite is good the cooking isn't bad.

When the other side does it, it is patriotism. When our side does it, it is a peccadillo.

Hair Made Beautiful

Beautiful hair, thick, lustrous and absolutely free from dandruff is not so much a gift of nature as a matter of care and proper nourishment. Hair is like a plant—it will not grow healthy and beautiful unless it has attention and proper treatment.

Parlato Sage daintily performed and easily applied, tones up and invigorates the roots of the hair, and furnishes the necessary nourishment to not only save and beautify the hair, but also stimulate it to grow long, heavy, soft, lustrous and radiant with life.

When used frequently and rubbed into the scalp, it will simply work wonders. Just one application stops itching scalp, removes dandruff, and cleanses the hair of all dirt and excessive oil.

Parlato Sage, which can be obtained from Jacobs ten stores or at any drug or toilet counter, never disappoints. It is no longer necessary for the woman to be humiliated because of thin, straggly, faded, lifeless or unattractive hair—and she knows that her hair, more than anything else, helps her to retain a youthful appearance.

Officials of the line state that train wreckers are responsible for the accident. A well-dressed young white man, appearing before Judge Nash Broyles Saturday afternoon under the charge of giving worthless checks. When the judge bound him over for trial for being a common cheat and swindler under a $300 bond, the young man only laughed, seeming to take the affair as a joke.

He gave his name as C. J. Murray, of Atlanta, Ga.

He gave his occupation as a traveling salesman. Murray was arrested Friday night by Detectives Webb and Harper. He had given E. E. Shafer a check for $12 on the Georgia National bank, of Athens. He had also given a check on the same bank to Miss Effie Moon, of 209 Ivy street, amounting to $15, and two to W. E. Jones, Austell building, amounting to $2 and $1. All of these had been returned labeled "No account."

The detectives are making further investigation of the record of the young man.

Leading Atlantan and Former Supreme Court Justice Accepts Citizens' Invitation.

Judge Spencer R. Atkinson will be a candidate for the general assembly from Fulton county.

His decision was made known yesterday in a remarkable letter to the distinguished committee of representative citizens that requested the use of his name.

His reply follows:

Judge Atkinson's Reply.
Messrs. Samuel M. Isaacs, James G. Woodward, Colonel Robert J. Leary, William L. Moore, Robert B. MacKintosh, Hollis Haddock, James W. English, Fred J. Paxson, John R. Murphy and others—Gentlemen: I wish to acknowledge the receipt of the address which you on behalf of your fellow citizens were kind enough to present to me some days ago, requesting that I should permit my name to be placed as a candidate to be one of the representatives of Fulton county in the next general assembly of Georgia.

This address appeared in several of the daily papers published in the city and its contents I doubt not the public is acquainted with.

I need not say to you that I greatly appreciate the sentiment contained in this address. I am fully conscious of the fact that it is my duty to discharge the duties and meet the responsibilities of the office, but I greatly more appreciate the sentiment contained in the address than I do the request that I should permit my name to be placed as a candidate to be one of the representatives of Fulton county in the next general assembly of Georgia.

I beg to say in reply to your suggestion, that I have no objection to my name being placed as a candidate to be one of the representatives of Fulton county in the next general assembly of Georgia.

I am, very respectfully,

How the South's Largest and Most Modern Laundry Cares For Your Wearing Apparel

An Interesting Interview With Mr. R. C. Thompson, General Manager Excelsior Laundry Company

From out of the mass of the world's industry the cry EFFICIENCY! is raised.

It is heard even above the demand for "safety first," and in almost every line of endeavor the problem is occupying the thought and study of the greatest industrial experts in the world.

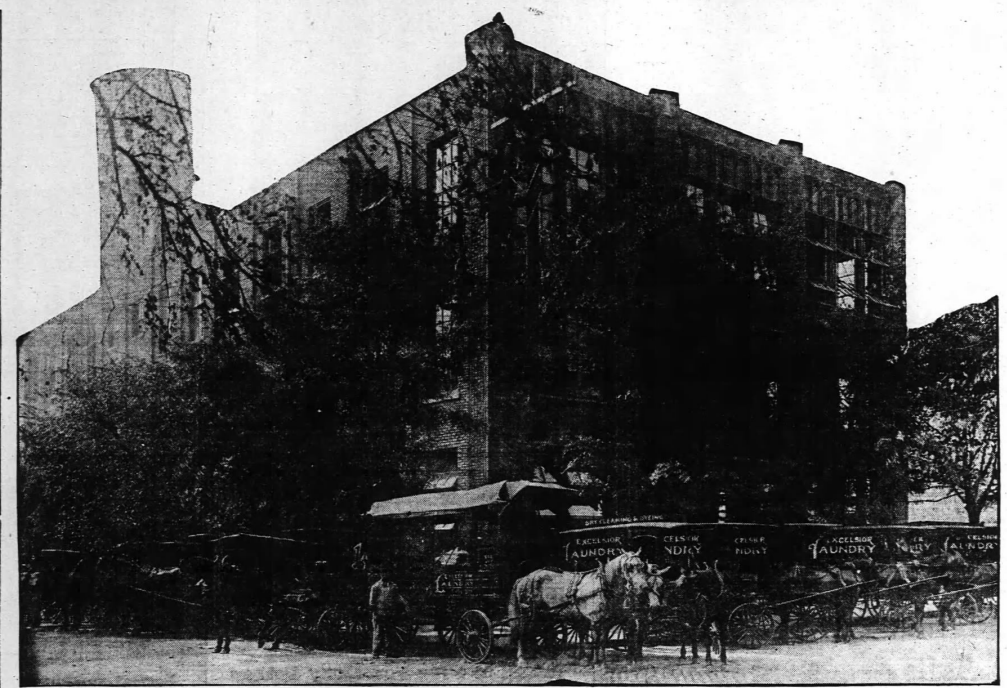

Right here in Atlanta, at the Excelsior Laundry Company plant, corner Piedmont Avenue and Ellis Street, efficiency, as applied to modern laundries, has been studied, and it is doubtful if there is another plant in the United States, whether it be a laundry plant or a steel mill, where a greater degree of efficiency has been attained than by R. C. Thompson, general manager, and the small army of employees working under his directions.

When the Knights and Nobles of the Shrine were marching on Atlanta, for instance, one of the gravest questions which confronted the railroads bringing the guests to the city, the hotels, and the various committees of Yaarab Temple appointed to look after the comforts of the visitors, was: "Can Atlanta efficiently launder the garments and linens of all her visitors?"

Out at the Excelsior Laundry, Manager Thompson was figuring on that very problem. He knew that Atlanta's facilities were adequate, and he felt certain that the Excelsior Laundry Company's new plant was adequate to launder the soiled clothes of nearly every person visiting the city, and at the same time not interfere with the routine work of the laundry. Manager Thompson decided to make the test. He went out to get all the work he possibly could. When the last train of Pullmans had pulled into the city, the wagons of the Excelsior were busy collecting linen.

On the morning of May 13 every machine in the laundry was working at full speed. Manager Thompson jumped into the work and supervised the handling of every piece. On the afternoon of May 16, the checkers at the laundry reported that exactly 168,974 pieces of linen had been gathered from the Pullman cars alone, every piece was carefully laundered, counted and delivered back to the cars to which they belonged.

In this stupendous undertaking, the Excelsior Laundry Company prepared, within four days, the linen of 480 Pullman sleepers.

The service given by the Excelsior, unprecedented in the history of the laundry business in the South, caused W. M. Camp, district superintendent of the Pullman company, to send the following laudatory communication to Manager Thompson:

The Pullman Company, Atlanta, Ga., May 22, 1914.
Subject: Linen, washing of. Mr. R. C. Thompson, General Manager, Excelsior Laundry Co., City.

Dear Sir:

Acknowledging your favor of even date. Have to advise that our records show that the Excelsior Laundry Company washed for us, 168,974 pieces of linen for 480 sleepers from the 13th to the 16th inclusive. This amount of linen was removed from the cars to the laundry, counted, washed, re-counted and returned to the cars between the above dates. To enable the Pullman Company to keep on our cars without exception a full and complete supply of clean linen, cars being occupied by Shriners.

This service we consider perfect and for which we are very grateful to your company, the result being most satisfactory and handled in a most satisfactory manner, more especially so by reason of the laundry having such a capacity as to take care of a movement of this magnitude with absolute perfection.

Yours truly,
W. M. CAMP,
Dist. Superintendent, the Pullman Company.

"I fully appreciated that we had undertaken a task which would tax our force to the utmost," said Manager Thompson commenting on the achievement, "but we figured that the plant was capable of doing all we claimed for it, and we entered into the enterprise with a feeling of certainty that the result would earn us the reward of joy of achievement."

Manager Thompson is an efficiency fiend. He has been in the laundry business since boyhood, and when he assumed management of the Excelsior Laundry Company plant, he determined to put all his knowledge, gained during a period of nearly twenty-five years, into the business. When the Company decided to erect a new plant, Manager Thompson applied the ideas he collected years ago, and the result is Atlanta has today a plant which compares with any laundry in the United States.

There are 169 people employed in the plant in various capacities. The heads of the departments are all trained men and women—employees who have had years of experience in the business. And one of the secrets of the growing success of the Excelsior Laundry Company is the fact that all the employees are happy and contented at their work. The building is almost entirely glass, and is considered by experts in building trades to be one of the best ventilated plants in the South. The machines, scattered about the building on the three floors, are so arranged that the men and women working behind them get every ray of God's blessed sunlight.

"Where there are numbers of men and women at work in one plant, the greatest incentive to efficient work is contentment," is one of Manager Thompson's mottoes. "When persons are forced to work in hovels, and death traps, they cannot be efficient, and in the long run the owners of the plants, and the public, suffers. Light and cleanliness give protection to our employees, and at the same time safeguard the public against disease."

A Constitution reporter was conducted over the entire plant of the Excelsior Laundry Company one day last week. Manager Thompson acted as guide.

The building is a model. The structure is built of iron, steel, brick and cement, with just enough woodwork to relieve the rough finish of concrete and brick. On the lower floor, as one enters the building, is the office, where a number of young men and women operate one of the most up-to-date systems the writer ever examined. Every device is a "time-saver."

The washroom, through which fine wearing apparel undergoes a modern system of cleaning, is also on the lower floor. On this floor are rows of monster revolving machines in which clothes are washed. Through each machine 170 gallons of hot sterile water, mixed with fine soap, passes every minute. On the same floor are the machines through which clothes are passed to wring the water from them. The machines are all modern; in fact, one of the machines used to iron collars is the only one of its kind in use in Atlanta, and one of the very few in use in the South. From the time clothes leave the washroom to the time they reach the room where they are assorted and made into bundles, they are forced through a systematic and thorough process of cleaning.

Manager Thompson went to a great deal of time and trouble to explain the modern method of washing and ironing collars, emphasizing the fact that the Excelsior system is one of the few systems which, not only do not wear out the collars, but preserve their shapes and wearing qualities.

Another feature which Manager Thompson took a keen delight in showing was the modern method employed by the Excelsior in cleaning and pressing ladies' and gent's clothing. The clothes are pressed by machines which are charged with steam heat. Through the method of pressing by steam heat, every sanitary precaution is taken, and, according to sanitary experts, who inspected the method, germs in clothing, even if they survive scouring, cannot live after steam is forced through every thread of the garment.

The lower floor—the washrooms—are equipped with concrete floors. Through the other parts of the building the floors are highly polished maple wood. The exterior front of the building is covered with heavy plate copper, giving the structure a handsome and inviting appearance.

The machinery of the plant is driven by electric power. The auxiliary power is steam. With the double system always ready for instant use, there is not the slightest danger of the plant being closed down for a minute. The electric engines are of the latest type, alternating current dynamo, the most modern in use. In addition to making its own motive power, the Excelsior Laundry manufactures its own gas.

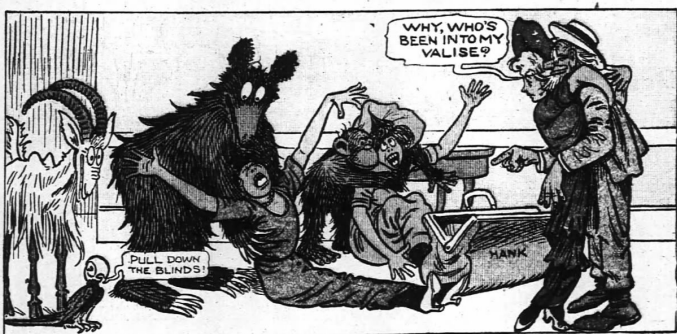

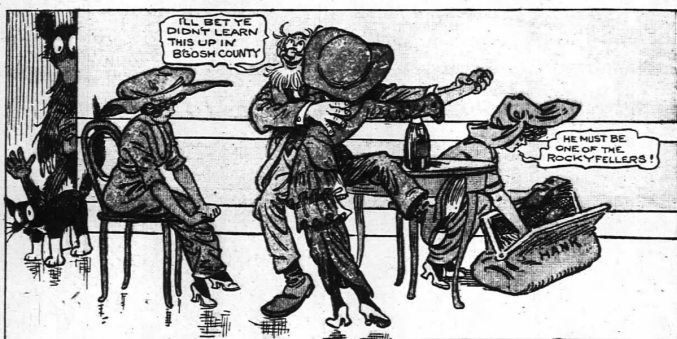

In general tone and operation, the Excelsior Laundry is modern and first-class, combining all the best methods in use today, from the checking system to the delivery method, which is made perfect by a system of routes traversed three times a day by twenty-one wagons. These routes include the suburban sections.

The Excelsior Laundry Company is a stock organization of which Mr. Thompson is manager. He has been in charge of the business since 1910, and has done wonders in building up the business, and setting an example for others to follow.

A visit to the plant is worth while. An hour spent among the machines is interesting. If nothing else, a visit will assure one that clothes, after passing through the Excelsior system, are thoroughly cleaned and in an absolutely sanitary condition when ready for delivery.

NO ORGANIC UNION OF PRESBYTERIANS

Southern Church Expected to Oppose Amalgamation of 17 Bodies—Middle Ground Is Likely to Be Taken.

Kansas City, Mo., May 23.—Although a union of the seventeen Presbyterian organizations long has been sought by the various church bodies, action looking to such a federation probably will not be taken by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (southern) in session here, commissioners said today.

A number of communications from the amalgamation were read and referred to a committee on overtures for unity. The committee is expected to report early next week. Most of the leading commissioners believe a middle ground will be taken—one that will not antagonize rigidly orthodox members.

Plea for Federated Union.
An overture from the Presbyterian church of the United States of America was read before the assembly today. This contained a plea to unite all Presbyterian bodies in a federated union under the direction of a Presbyterian congress to be patterned after the national congress.

Another overture from the Presbyterian church of Knoxville, Tenn., proposed a union of all the church bodies, divided into four districts, northeast, southwest, northwest and southeast. Annual meetings of the governing organizations in each district were proposed with a meeting of a general council of all the districts every four years.

The women's council of the church today considered a suggestion that donations be made directly to the church and not to the women's auxiliary as has been the custom. No definite action was reached.

A general educational conference was held tonight. The Rev. M. E. Melvin, Fort Gibson, Miss., urged greater cooperation between the church and its schools and colleges and a more liberal financial policy. The Rev. R. E. Vinson, D. O., president of Austin Presbyterian Theological seminary at Austin, Texas, made a plea for the education of more young men and young women in Presbyterian colleges.

Changes in Church Policy.
Several changes in church policy and church organization were recommended by the systematic beneficence committee reported today. One of these provides for a new office—that of educational secretary. This office, it is proposed, shall serve under the four executive committees of the assembly—foreign missions, home missions, education and Sunday school. Other recommendations are to give executive secretaries more latitude in their work and to increase the scope of the women's council.

One million dollars is asked for foreign missions and a half million for home missions.

More Ministers Needed.
The ad interim committee on education, which also presented its report today, recommended that the assembly clearly define the relationship an educational institution must sustain to the church to be called Presbyterian. More than 1,000 young ministers are needed by the church, it was asserted in the report on Christian education and ministerial relief. The dearth of pulpits men is a question that is worrying most churches, it was said, and the examination of the Presbyterian church in the south has given that organization a serious problem in the matter of supplying ministers.

The report was read by Rev. H. H. Swerts, of Louisville, Ky., who said that in the last ten years the church had gained 215 ministers, but had gained 315 new churches. "At the beginning of 1914," he said, "there were 715 churches without pastors and there are now 275 places where there are opportunities to organize new churches. In all, 1,910 new preachers are needed."

Faithful to Old Tenets.
That the Presbyterian church remains faithful to its old tenets was asserted by Dr. Thomas H. Law, of Spartanburg, S. C., stated clerk and treasurer of the assembly.

"What I have seen in these assemblies," Dr. Law said, "has emphasized to my mind more than anything else the fact that the Presbyterian church stands on the Westminster articles of faith. I have seen new ideas come, but back of them the church remains the same. We may emphasize different things at different times, but as now the church is emphasizing education and social service, but the reason for this remains the same. All social service in the world will not regenerate a man unless we regenerate his spirit, too."

More Chaplains Urged.
Rev. Charles F. MacFarland, general secretary of the Federated Churches of Christ in America, today in an address asserted that people their growth, the army and navy have no more chaplains than they need for their growth. He asked the assembly to take steps to provide one chaplain, ordained by some Christian church, for every 1,000 men. There are but twenty-two chaplains in the navy, he said, while there should be at least forty.

There is conflict in government officials over this question, he said. MacFarland contended that chaplains favorably influence the conduct of the army, navy, and navy. He urged that the assembly take the church away from its present men and appoint a new Presbyterian training school at Richmond, Va., next fall, according to a report made today by the ad interim committee on education. It will be adapted especially for the training of lay workers, it is said. Richmond residents have given a building and guaranteed support to the training school for this year.

Following the appointment of a standing committee on education, a resolution was offered authorizing the transfer of the assembly's home and school at Fredericksburg, Va., to the synod of Virginia. In accordance with the synod's request.

STRICT OBSERVANCE OF LORD'S DAY.
Chicago, May 23.—Granting of the Sunday half holiday as a means of a stricter observance of the Sabbath was urged in the report of the committee on the Sabbath, presented today to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (southern) in session here. The committee's recommendations made by the committee

"That the general assembly reiterate its strong and emphatic approval of all secular use of the Sabbath day, all games and sports, all amusements, all unnecessary travel, all unnecessary business, and all unnecessary work, and urge upon all employers of labor and captains of industry to recognize the need of the laboring man to rest, rest day and night, to insure his greater efficiency and happiness and the greater prosperity of both capital and labor."

"That we most respectfully call attention of all public officials to the potent influence of their position on all moral questions, and the necessity of greater care on their part, that they may strengthen rather than weaken by their influence, public and private observation."

"That all families be urged not to have their servants on the Sabbath and that all unnecessary travel, all unnecessary business, and all unnecessary work, and urge upon all employers of labor and captains of industry to recognize the need of the laboring man to rest, rest day and night, to insure his greater efficiency and happiness and the greater prosperity of both capital and labor."

"That the assembly reiterate its emphatic condemnation of the Sunday newspaper and urge the publishers of the Presbyterian church to refuse to subscribe for it or read it, or advertise in it."

"That the faculties of colleges and seminaries, if the way be clear, be requested to omit recitations Monday mornings, so as to leave the Sabbath free from the necessity of preparing their lessons on that day."

"That a Sabbath observance committee be organized in each synod and presbytery."

Several commissioners objected to the recommendation of the committee on the Sabbath, stating that the closing of the Sunday newspaper had resulted in financial saving to the government and urged the reform for churches and seminaries. The committee disapproved "all secular use of the Sabbath day" and urged that the Sunday newspaper be changed to read "all commercialized Sunday use of the Sabbath day."

H. L. Hough, of New York, declared that "Sabbath desecration is the greatest horror of the age." "Commercialized sports," he said, "particularly baseball, are a moral menace to the church." The report also deprecated the opening of the Panama-Pacific exposition on Sunday.

MEMPHIS CHOSEN FOR CUMBERLANDS.
Wagner, Okla., May 23.—The selection of Memphis, Tenn., as the site of the 1915 general assembly, the passage of resolutions endorsing the work of religious organizations now holding their conventions and discussions of reports of committees marked today's session of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church here.

The report made Friday, was the failure to extend greetings to the Northern Presbyterian assembly meeting at Chicago. Messages were sent to the Southern Presbyterian, Kansas City; the Associated Reform Presbyterians, at Louisville, Ky., and the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Oklahoma City.

It was announced today that the committee on schools was considering a recommendation to establish a theological seminary devoted entirely to education of men for the ministry of the church. The report made Friday, it was explained, favored the colleges at McKeesville, Tenn., and Leonard, Texas, as the two schools of literature to be supported by the church. The chairman of the committee, formally presented to the assembly the plan of the seminary, and the matter of appointing the faculty. The committee on the work of the local church in entering the world, raised money and pay off the church debt. The report made Friday, it was explained, favored the colleges at McKeesville, Tenn., and Leonard, Texas, as the two schools of literature to be supported by the church.

1. An extremely popular mode of the spring is the clever combination of contrasting colors. In this model brown duvetyne is well combined with buff colored crepe, figured with a motive in a darker tone. The Gladstone collar and vest are of sheer, white linen. The tiny black binding on the vest and the black binding on the shoulder straps and apron make a chic finish. The buff colored turban in tagal straw is ornamented by a single black quill.

2. Here is jauntness of outline which harmonizes with the spring mood. The material used is satin in dull blue. The broad collar and the undersleeves are of white faille and the little hat of black milan straw has a flaring brim of blue maline. Two thin black feathers hold the brim tilted from the face on one side.

3. A ripple cloth morning dress in the new brown. The snug little blouse is almost a coat and over the narrow skirt is hung a tunic so long as to almost become an overskirt. The cuffs and sash are of black faille and the tilted black hat of milan straw has against the brim, two soft pompos of this charming new color.

4. Combining a suggestion of both dress and suit, this tailored morning frock fulfills many duties. The material used is cinder grey wipcord, and it is collared, cuffed and girdled in Roman stripe faille. The simplicity of the blouse and the excellent lines of the skirt are charming features. The close-fitting round hat has an upstanding flare of grey maline.

5. The placing of the black sash and the deep girdle and stitched seams give this morning dress an air of individuality. The material used is the ever popular soft serge in antique blue. The collar and vest are of heavy white crepe and the hat, one of the most popular of the spring models, is of milan straw wreathed in tight roses and black leaves.

Memphis, Tenn., May 23.—In connection with the sale of the Memphis baseball club to Russell Gardner, a local millionaire, announced yesterday, it was stated today that efforts will be made to strengthen the team and place it in the first division. While the terms of the sale were not made public, it is known that Frank P. Coleman, the president, who holds a majority of the stock, had demanded $40,000 for his share, and this is believed to have been the basis of settlement.

OSWALD KIRBY WINS METROPOLITAN GOLF

Defeated Walter J. Travis in Finals at Englewood, 3 Up and 1 to Play.

Englewood, N. J., May 23.—The name of Oswald Kirby, of the Englewood Country club, will be the first to be engraved on the Metropolitan Golf association's new championship trophy, the last one having been the property of Jerome D. Travers.

Kirby defeated Walter K. Travis, of Garden City, here today by 3 up and 1 to play in the final 36 hole round for the Metropolitan title, which he has persistently sought and played for annually since 1904. His best previous effort was in 1912, when he was runner-up to Travis, while last year and in 1911 he was eliminated in the semi-final round by Travis and Fred Hunter.

Kirby's game has improved steadily each succeeding year, and his success today was not unexpected.

German States Make Slaves of Inveterate Idlers

More Than 40,000 Men Who Refuse to Work Are Held in the Labor Homes of Seven Different States--Police Have Autocratic Powers, and the Public Wish to Bring Them Under the Jurisdiction of the Courts.

(Copyright, 1914, by Curtis Brown.)
Berlin, May 23.—Prussia's system of state slavery for idlers has brought her into conflict with mild Bavaria. Bavaria compels her idlers to work; but mild Prussia does not. If a Prussian citizen refuses to earn his living, or spends his earnings on drink and neglects his family he may be turned into a state-owned slave, quite as in ancient Athens. He may be seized by the local police, and without any trial sent to a compulsory labor home where he must slave for years for the benefit of the state. This is under a law which passed only two years ago.

Slavery for Idiots. State slavery for idiots flourishes not only in Prussia. It is an old institution in Saxony, Wurttemberg, Oldenburg and the free republic of Hamburg. All these countries have constitutions which declare that no man can be imprisoned without trial, but they all have laws which enact the contrary. In Saxony, for example, the law condemns the laws as unconstitutional. The laws proclaim that idiots may be turned out of the country without trial, but the law provides that no idiot can be turned out any trial, on the mere command of the police or some other local authority. Though this is pure nonsense, no effective remedy is provided, and the system would be established tomorrow as law for the whole empire were it not for the fact that it would never arise from the confusion of the ad-administrative system in the different states of Prussia, Saxony and the other states maintain numerous labor houses in the colonies. In effect, are nothing but slave plantations. These are mostly situated in remote districts, often in the interior of the country, without communication. The men work under guard in the open country, but the houses in which they sleep are surrounded by a fence and are guarded by soldiers. The idlers wear no prison uniform, but that does not make escape easy. The idlers are not separated from the soldiers from all unknown men, and in case of escape are severely punished, without taking the consequences. Under this system about 40,000 idlers who have never been sentenced to prison are employed. Under administrative decree in the different labor homes of seven different Prussia's excuse for such severe laws is that she is more plagued with idlers, tramps and vagabonds than other countries. This is true, though foreigners do not respect it. Dr. Hans Oswald, of Berlin, an expert on this problem, estimates that Prussia has 100,000 tramps, and the minister has the interior says that since 1902 the number of families deserted by husband and father has increased 34 per cent.

To Make Idlers Work.
For this reason Prussian legislators decided that it was necessary to look up habitual idlers and compel them to work. The trouble was to find a satisfactory definition of an habitual idler. Therefore, when Prusna set out to write the law, he had in mind the smaller states which already had a state slavery system. It is not possible to find a satisfactory and generally mutually at for work should be claimed as a right. It is not possible to find a man who by drink or other excessive culpably unfit themselves for work. The ideas came from the law of the smaller states. The legal definition of a habitual idler is a man who has been convicted of theft or other crimes and other dependents. The law laid down that the committee has to investigate the man and to report the case, and the committee takes the decision. The man is not to be released. The offender is committed to a workhouse for a definite period of reformation or for an indefinite period, spending his time in working for the state. The law was passed in Prusna and the other states which had a slavery system. It was a law that transgresses the principles of personal freedom. The accused idler has no practice. The committee has to investigate the police themselves do not impose on the man's character decides the member of the committee which investigates the man. Also a Hamburg qualification.

They Set Him Free.

The authorities must first sue for the return of his passport, but must send him to a labor exchange which will offer him work, and if this is refused, the authorities must warn him of his fate if he remains obdurate. Should he ignore the warning, he will be arrested, and if voluntarily, and only if he fails to do so, he will be sentenced to prison. If the idler must be warned twice, he must be sent to a home. Saxony has a number of such protective authorities or the police can seize the idler, and if he is sentenced for an indefinite period, "he can appeal to the so-called "control authorities," but no court will hear his case. If he is sentenced to prison, he will be flogged on the way, who continue to be sent to the workhouse, and back home. In Saxony labor homes sometimes have a 100 beds, and in some towns. Everywhere the idlers get long periods. In Oldenburg the minimum is two years. A man who has been sentenced to prison for a minimum three years. The Prussian law is the most severe. The idler shall be periodically reconsidered at least once a year.

and its rule, well treated. The value of their work was allowed them, and they were not put to do work which could not result in any benefit to themselves. They earn from 50 cents to 75 cents a week, and the surplus, after deductions of the average German unsatisfied demand for food, clothing, and employment. From their earnings the labor home deducts the bare cost of their maintenance, and the balance to their families or to the poor of their native land supports the families.

When they leave the home, reformed, they get a lump sum, a job, and a passport. The labor home says that Saxony's experience, Prussia's experiment has been too short for judgment.

Experts who otherwise quarrel as to the merits of the state slavery system, are here in agreement that it is worthless from the standpoint of the laborer, and that it is a waste of money, but it is successful because it compels laborers to support their families as long as they are able to do so. It believes the state of a burden and gives it valuable consideration in the shape of a reward.

Only about 12 per cent of the laborers are employed in the work performed by a term of slavery to the state. The remainder are employed after a couple of years hard labor upon the land, or in the mines, or in the state service. They make labor to have to lead an industrious life. On this they are released. Freedom and the right to work are theirs. They are good resolutions and within a few weeks or months they are again state slaves. They are sold to the plantations. Anhalt labor home, thirty-two were sent back within six months. All of them were sold to the plantations. The experts say that such men by their own efforts can never become untary workers. They make good work-ers on the plantations. The plantations of Hamburg is the only state where temporary labor is used. The reformers say Hamburg. This is put down as the worst of the state. The reformers say the worst of the state. The reformers say the worst of the state. The reformers say the worst of the state.

by a court, and the police should be put away. Inconvenient persons, at this point, are not to be considered. At this standpoint, it fosters the existing lawlessness, and the police find it a useful lever. The leverage may be used for good or evil. The police are a servative local, knows he will be a social-democratic idler. As the law is not to be considered, the citizen is compulsorily in a labor house a large part of his life. The working-class population is the Prussian idler.

This is because Prussian law defines the citizen as a man who has no parents, for four generations, and if he has no children, he is a citizen. All eight great-grand parents are an indolent Prussian who supports both parents. If he is not supporting an indolent father, he is not supporting an indolent mother, and if he cannot give an answer satisfactory to the law, he is turned away from wife and children, and he is sent to a labor house.

This is the letter of the Prussian law. Progressive Germans hold that police should be abolished, and the law is unfit to be invested with such power, and that the law should be abolished for idlers law. The chief demand is that the law should be abolished. Against the fact of state slavery few complain. It is part of the universal law of the world, and the state has no tutelage.

LITTLE CROWN PRINCE SEEKING SKI HONORS

Christiana. May 23—The little Crown Prince Olav, like every Norwegian boy, is striving to become the best skier in his class. He was given his first skis at the age of five, and now, at the age of 11, he has been jumping over a bar of his age at the sport and is as enthusiastic about it as the athletes who are his contemporaries. He came to Norway in 1920 they knew where their first winter was over the snow-covered mountains. The king, queen and under the tutelage of Captain Nordmark, one of the most expert ski runners in Norway, they could compete with any native-born skier.

In the winter the royal family live near the scene of the world's greatest skiing contests. They have received gifts from the people, is built in the form of a modern sportsman's clubhouse in true sportsman fashion. It is a place where the king and queen for royal ceremony and etiquette, so constitute the most enjoyable season

They found particular pleasure recently in entertaining the Prince of Wales, their nephew, who tried skiing for the first time. The prince took to the Norwegian sports so readily that during the last day of his visit he made a trip to the high mountains and glaciers, a feat that is not considered lightly even by experienced mountain climbers. When he left for home he expressed the intention of coming back next winter, if possible.

RADIUM IN THE BODY MAY CAUSE CANCER

London, May 23.—Dr. Walter S. Lazarus-Barlow, who has recently had success in the treatment of cancer by radium, says radium in the human body may also be the cause of cancer.

At a recent meeting of physicians and surgeons, he told of experiments he performed upon animal cells and explained that while cancer might be divided into various classes it was nothing more or less than disordered cell growth. "I am not sure," he said, "that there is one cause, but I would suggest to you that in the radium and radiation we have the probable cause."

Radium, he continued, was widely distributed in nature in quantities which had been shown to produce the stimulation of cell growth and later to develop some deleterious effects which

Cancer is closely associated with inflammation to such an extent, he said, that chronic irritation was the only cause which was universal and that chronic irritation was so closely bound up with bacteria that there arose the question whether radium itself induced cancer.

Dr. Barlow made experiments of his own and had demonstrated that bacteria actually pulled radium to themselves. If radium, therefore, were circulating in the blood while bacteria were present, the bacteria would pull the radium and deposit the radium, forming a focus of that substance, producing stimulation of the tissue.

He said radium was present at times in normal human tissues, and it was found in greater quantities in cancerous tissues.

Paris, May 23.—Preparations for the Olympic games of 1916 at Berlin have been proceeding with the rapid growth of France in the world of sport, one of the most interesting and important of the nations of the world. Although only a matter of comparatively recent date, yet look at her record in the world of sports and of comfort. In lawn tennis she possesses in Decugis, Gobert, Laurencia, Gernot and others, a number of players who are almost as good as five players that could be brought together in the United States. In tennis, too, she has been proficient at the game for generations. In the world of football she has only two of her champions, whose possesses backers who could probably be found in any other nation. In the conditions being equal, in golf, Masny was good enough to win the Knickerbocker Cup. In the world of soccer Jean Gasnier and two or three others among the players of the French team are good enough to give the Frenchman the edge. In the world of tennis, Masny's equal, Bouin, the Frenchman, is undoubtedly the finest player in the world in the tennis game. Finally, in Rugby football, the French have made wonderful improvement in the last few years and are now strong enough to give a representative Eng-

Excel In Many Fields.

French athletes excel for the moment in the world of sports. But this corresponds to or are the result of a great national awakening and internationalism. The French are the best. Contrast conditions here with those in Great Britain. The latter lags behind in the world of sports. The reason is the lack of a similar national interest and enthusiasm in sports like rowing, canoeing, sailing, football, basketball, etc. as good if not better than he has ever been, but in boxing and lawn tennis. The French are the best in the world. It has been suffering from a slump because of a corresponding decline in the popularity of these sports. The great public enthusiasms, like the American national interest in field hockey, basketball, football, etc., are missing, and despite all the hard things that have been said against those who play these sports, they are the best of cricketers and yet never play the games, they are the best guarantee of the future of the sport. The standard and the best insurance against a dearth of first-class players. Without this the sport steadily declines.

That is exactly what is the matter with boxing in England. Boxing has become too much centralized. Real first-class boxing has become a sport not for an enthusiastic public, but for a few moneyed men who gather in the National Sporting club and monopolize the game. And because of the limitations of this private club the purses that can be offered to the world's best boxers in London are, comparatively speaking, ridiculously small. Really good and promising native boxers who if born in the United States or Austr-

In Search of Big Purses.
Contrast this with conditions in the United States and France. In the former country one can name a score of clever young boxers who have made from $20,000 to $50,000 each in a few years in the boxing ring. Good Englishmen like Driscoll, Freddie Welsh, Owen Moran, Matt Wells and others are driven abroad in search of big purses.

Unfortunately, France's crack tennis players have been out of form for the

But rapid as is France's development in the lawn tennis world, it is even more sensational in the realm of boxing, largely due to the work of Georges Carpentier, the youthful heavyweight champion of Europe. Just how good Carpentier really is it is impossible to say, pending his appearance in the ring with some of the American light-heavyweights. Victory over a man like Langford, who is just about his weight, would put him in the very front rank of the world's boxers.

While one is free to express these doubts as to the exact position of Carpenter on the pugilistic ladder, no one can deny that he has had an amazing career. From a mere stripling he has excelled in every weight division, but it was not until he went to England to fight Syd Burns and Young Josephs and secured a decision over the first and a knock-out against the latter that he was generally recog-

Although Carpenter has not fared particularly well against the American boxers, having been defeated by the Dixey Kid, Frank Klaus and Billy Papke, there is a certain amount of legitimate excuse for his poor showing in these matches. During all the time he has been fighting Carpenter has been growing at a tremendous rate and it has been a constant problem to keep him in any one class. In the first match, he was in the 125-pound class. Frenchman was ill, while in the other two matches Carpenter undoubtedly won, but he was in the 135-pound class. Of course, the boy and his backers are anxious to make as much money as they can, and it is a flowery way, but the fighters' record is almost perfect.

An instance of this occurred when Carpenter was in England training for a fight with a fellow countryman, Joseph. Bombardier Wells was then training for his proposed fight with the Englishman, and the crowd never came off. Carpenter, who, be it remembered, was then only a welterweight, was then sent to fight with Wells at Earl's court, and became a champion. He was then sent to fight a champion, even though the latter had about 40 pounds advantage in weight. Carpenter was 150 pounds in inches in reach, and, moreover, was training to fight the greatest boxer of the day, Jack Johnson, the reigning champion of the world.

He Wanted $10,000.

Wells was approached by Deschamps, Carpentier's manager, who declared he would bet $5,000 on his protege, and a Wendy was formed which offered Wells $5,000 for his end of the purse. The fight was scheduled for $10,000 and the negotiations fell through. It was then that the young carpenter's wonderful confidence in himself, but as well, the enormous courage he had, showed. He was willing to take in their chase after a fight.

Although France has raised a whole brood of clever fighters, there is one who has been the most successful on the front rank on this side of the Atlantic. He is a young man, a first-rate fighting Digger, Stanley, who had proved himself a champion of the world. The boys at his weight, became a real champion with as much claim to the title as any of the world's champions. He has won two recent defeats in consecutive fights. He is a real champion, hitting little Welsh boy, shows that he is still too good for any on this side.

Nose Tip Vaccination.

The young Japanese diplomat pointed to his father, the marquis:

"That's father," said the old fellow, "and the saucer-shaped scar on the end of his nose. All Japs of the name of the marquis have it."

"Yes," said the debutante.
"Yes," it's a vaccination mark. In the old days, when compulsory vaccination first began, we Japanese vaccinated everybody, even the girls, to get no typhoid. Well, because it was a good place, where there's no movement to rub off the scar, and also because the vaccination scar on the nose was easily identified by the medical officers of the government. A man didn't have to take off his hair, or bother in order to prove that he'd been vaccinated.
"Yes, the nose tip vaccination had its good points, but before the modern hankering after beauty it had to go."

ENGLISH LABOR UNIONS FORM GREAT COMBINE

London, Friday 22. Great trades union combine has been organized in England, in which miners, railwaymen, dockers, and transport workers, 1,500,000 men, will hereafter support each other. The members of the miners' federations, the railwaymen, and the dockers have agreed between the three organizations to form a new body, and have appointed a committee to arrange the details. The committee has already secured the most recent strikes that without a working agreement the country would be unable to gather in case of a dispute, not a great number of men, but a large number of organizations. When the transport workers were on strike, the transport of goods was almost at a standstill, and the attempt to tie up the transport of the country would have been a disaster, if not successful. Also when the miners' strike was on, the country was almost immediately effective unless the railwaymen and the dockers were also on strike. As the colliers have large stocks of coal, they will not be so effective. If labor can be obtained. With the three organizations, the country will be able to enforce better conditions of work. Robert Skellern, M.P., president of the National Union of Railwaymen, has 800,000 members, is the largest organization, and has been the most active in co-operation between the three organizations. The railwaymen, the dockers, and the transport workers, the miners, and the dockers will all be on strike, and the country will be unable to function. The combination will wield a great power, and will be able to enforce the terms supported by all these voters. The combination will be a great step in the direction of parliament.

SURGEON SEWS HAIRS TO THE HUMAN SCALP

Budapest, May 23.—A method of sewing hairs to the human scalp in cases of baldness has been successfully used by Dr. Szekely at the hospital of St. Stephens in this city. The number of hairs planted in the head of one patient has been as high as 50,000. One hundred hairs are drawn through punctures in the scalp in every square centimeter, and as both ends are left free, this makes over 1,000 hairs to each square inch.

In the operation very fine gold wires are used, one-five-hundredths of an inch in diameter, and fine long hairs from a woman's head are attached to the anchor, which is then secured to the anchor. After sterilization is introduced into the hair, the hair is twisted, holding the hair in permanent position. The hair is then cut and the ends thus planted in three-quarters of an inch. A special instrument has been devised for the purpose of planting the gold wire, which are so fine that after the work is completed the patient is left with only one or two grammes of gold left in the scalp. The hair is then cut and the ends after a capsule of tissue forming around the gold knot. The inflammation around the gold knot disappears after the operation and no evil results have been observed. The hair which has been treated in the ordinary manner from the hair of a patient, the doctor's earliest patient, who underwent the operation, has now grown into a beautiful head of natural glossy hair.

WEST END PARK

IT OCCUPIES AN IMPORTANT POSITION IN THE CITY'S RESIDENTIAL STRUCTURE

YEAR BY YEAR West End Park grows in importance. There were skeptical ones at first who said it would not amount to much. They had seen before many a half-baked subdivision put on the market; and they thought West End Park might be similar. They had seen additions laid off, lots staked out, streets hastily scratched on the surface, paved principally with good intentions and broken promises, like a certain famous highway we read about in history.

The skeptical ones now admit that West End Park is on the map. It is an integral part of the city's residential structure. You should take a look at it now.

We claim that W. J. Davis was distinctly a public benefactor when he took charge of the hundred or more acres that lay wild out on the edge of town and converted it into a residential park. The system of streets as laid out in West End Park constitutes a model that might well be followed in laying out similar subdivisions.

On Saturday, May 30, at 3:30 o'clock, we want you to be our guest at a public reception to be held at West End Park. At this time we will put up at auction twenty-one choice lots, and will let them go for whatever they bring.

We want you to come out to this reception whether you have in mind buying a lot or not. You will see and learn much that will be of advantage. One thing you will learn by coming out to this auction is the surprising rate at which Atlanta grows. There used to be a long skip place between old West End and the new addition; but now this is all built up and West End Park is closely knitted up to the city.

Another thing that you will observe with pleasure and possible surprise is the beauty and variety of the dwellings in West End Park. Hundreds of dwellings of the advanced bungalow type can be seen. Anyone who is interested in house construction, should visit West End Park in order to obtain advanced ideas. The word has been freely passed along that in West End Park you can learn something about the right kind of house to build so as to tempt someone to live in it.

So in all good faith we are getting ready for a sure enough auction on next Saturday. It may not be exactly the best time to hold a public sale, as viewed from the seller's standpoint, but it is decidedly a good time from the buyer's standpoint.

We have urged Will Davis to wait until later on, but he says let the lots go.

Savannah, Ga., May 23.—Savannah swept the series with Jacksonville by taking the final game today, 2 to 0, after a brilliant hurling duel between Johnson and Cawley. In which both pitchers gave up but two hits, one of these a scratch. A batter on balls made one of the runs possible, and the other scored on a hit, an error and a sacrifice fly. The game was the second played here this season, one hour and nineteen minutes.

WHILE of course there are serious cases of feminine ills that nothing but a surgical operation will remedy, the indisputable fact remains that hundreds of operations have been avoided by the wonderful medicinal virtue of and the very best proof of this is the unsolicited and grateful letters of the recovered ones themselves. By special permission we publish here four of them out of hundreds we have:—

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I blighted it! I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine. I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know."—Mrs. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin Street, Logansport, Ind.

Deatur, Ill.—"I was sick in bed and three of the best physicians said I would have to be taken to the hospital for an operation as I had something growing in my left side. I refused to submit to the operation and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and it worked a miracle in my case, and I feel better than I have for years."—Mrs. LAURA A. GAWWOLZ, 2300 Elk, East William Street, Deatur, Ill.

It would seem wise before undergoing an operation to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. RELIABLE TESTIMONY.—All our testimonials are guaranteed to be genuine and truthful. They came to us entirely unsolicited and are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.—THE LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I but this I refused. Charlotte, N.C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor, and I never could get well. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I feel better than I have for years."—Mrs. ROSA SAYS, 16 Winona St., Charlotte, N.C.

Georgia's Fair Conditions Are Shown by Answers Of Fertilizer Inspectors

To determine the actual condition of the Georgia farmer inquiries were recently sent to each of the fertilizer inspectors in each county, asking for report by county. The inspectors were urged to make careful inquiries, and their answers compiled to be of valuable service, and will serve as a basis for advising the farmers for the next few months.

The inquiries sought information as to the condition of corn made last year, and whether or not it was carried through the winter without material damage. Careful inquiry was made as to whether or not feedstuffs would have to be bought. The reports of 110 counties of 61 have not raised enough for farm purposes, and some of these are in the majority of the counties it is almost a failure.

The reports also show that the oat crop has been hurt throughout the state, and in the majority of the counties it is almost a failure.

The New England.

The crops raised in Georgia are from 25 per cent to 50 per cent less than is necessary for home consumption, except in a very few counties. Another fact is that peas, velvet beans and soybeans are in short supply. Some of the crops are not planted as universal as they should be. Corn is reported as a hay crop in ten counties, beggar weed in two, velvet in six, timothy, bermuda, hard grass, clover, alfalfa, and sorghum.

Under such conditions as these, the department will issue from time to time for the next several months articles outlining the condition of the crops, and the farmers' failure to raise ample feed supplies.

The list of questions follow:

- Q.—What is the condition of the crops in your county well during the past winter?
- Q.—What per cent damaged by winter?
- Q.—Will there be enough corn for home consumption, or will you have to buy from the west to make another crop?
- Q.—Is your grain crop good this year?
- Q.—If not, why not?
- Q.—Does your county sell any grain?
- Q.—What is the custom after the grain is sold?
- Q.—What varieties of peas do you usually plant?
- Q.—How much peavine hay does your county make?
- Q.—Do you use peavine hay exclusively on the farm or do you sell it?
- Q.—Do you use peavine hay for commercial or other purposes?
- Q.—Do you get for hay?
- Q.—Are the purchasers of your hay entirely satisfied?
- Q.—What have other pea growers in your county to say about it?
- Q.—What is your estimate of the condition of the crops in your county to be bought for your county to make another crop?
- Q.—Do you plant ground peas?
- Q.—Please state what you think of these crops from your county.
- Q.—Are ground peas raised extensively in your county?
- Q.—If so, for what purpose?
- Q.—Do you raise any other crops in your county?
- Q.—Are you troubled with hog cholera?
- Q.—How many more hogs would your county have to raise to supply the demand?
- Q.—What are the results of your county and what with results?

Before Spending Your Good Money for A Refrigerator, You Should Know That there are many good Refrigerators in the market, as well as many that are not so good. The Odorless is one of the best made and this detail tells why:

Cases—Made of carefully selected kiln-dried oak—not ash or pine, stained to imitate oak—but genuine oak itself. Heavy raised front panels, rounded corners; each joint dovetailed and glued.
Insulation—Exterior case one thickness of heavy WOOL INSULATING FELT; one space DEAD AIR; one quilt linoleum. Interior cases and inner lining of one piece porcelain. This system of insulation is superior to all hair felt, charcoal, ground cork and mineral wool methods. Come in and well explain why.

Provision Chambers—Of white porcelain, made the same way as porcelain bath tubs. Indestructible, and without a joint or seam.

Ice Chambers—Lined with heavy galvanized steel and each joint neatly sealed. Corners forged up as in an ordinary cake pan; leakage is impossible.

Adjustable Shelves—Made of substantial tinned woven wire, which will not interfere with the air circulation.

Drain Pipes and Traps—Easily accessible and removable for cleaning.

Circulation—The air circulation is absolutely dry. A wet cloth placed on one of the refrigerator shelves will dry quicker than on the outside. Matches stored for a month will strike freely afterward.

Despite the Superior Goodness of These Refrigerators, They Are All Specially Priced Thus:

After Easy Start Cotton Advanced

Buying Was Aggressive in Late Session and Market Closed Very Steady and Higher.

New York, May 23.—Although the cotton market started out easy today, it soon developed a firmer tone, and throughout the late trading session active with an upward tendency, the close being very steady at a partial net advance of 11 points.

It was gradually a weather market from start to finish. The upward movement, which began on Thursday and continued throughout yesterday, was in evidence again at the opening today, influenced by a decline of 4 to 6 points at Liverpool and elsewhere. The weather was generally better over Sunday. Fears of untimely frosts in the West, and the fact that the cotton crop in the West is not so good as it was last year, are among the factors which have influenced the market. The fact that the cotton crop in the West is not so good as it was last year, is a factor which has influenced the market. ORGANIZED MOTHERHOOD

It is often said that women today are engaged in a multitude of activities unknown to them in the past; that a myriad of new avenues of usefulness are now the woman's to contribute to her comfort, her importance and her economic efficiency. But above and beyond all the vocational effort of the moment is the supreme, the sublime calling of motherhood—a calling sanctified since the world began and destined to continue as a sacred trust, a divine heritage and a perfect fulfillment of all the highest qualities in the heart and mind and soul of woman.

An important step, however, in the pathway of advancement has been taken by modern mothers who have banded themselves together for a more systematic, universal and effective service; in short, many mothers have already organized into a body, all working together for the same general ends. Such a body is the National Congress of Mothers, and so useful an organization is this considered that not only our own government, but the governments of other nations, are giving all possible recognition and assistance to organized mothers in every part of the world.

The great publications, designed solely for women, and patronized by millions and millions of women, are devoting more and more of their valuable space to mothers. And this is as it should be, for in the profession of motherhood is combined every department of education, of moral training, of social and economic effort, and also of many phases of the recognized higher professions, such as medicine, hygiene, sanitation, agriculture and even of diplomacy and the industrial arts. Every good mother is confronted at one time or the other in her life by situations requiring the exercise of one or all of these activities; hence, the "profession of motherhood" demands not only organization, but the highest sort of personal training.

The National Congress of Mothers, and our own Georgia branch of that organization, is seeking to bring this training within the reach of every mother in Georgia. The letter, which follows, from the newly-elected president, Mrs. Howard Payne, of Elberton, gives some pertinent facts on this subject, and it is a communication which will be read with profound interest by every thinking mother in Georgia.

Strong Mothers' Organization Formed in 12th District

The thirteen counties comprised by the twelfth district of Georgia have organized themselves into a body which they call the Twelfth District Georgia branch of the National Congress of Mothers. The Cochran Journal has been made the official organ of this branch, while members are urged to communicate with The Constitution as the official organ of the National Congress of Mothers. The officers of the Twelfth District branch are as follows: Mrs. Howard Payne, president; Miss Ann L. Walker, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. J. A. Walker, chairman of press and publicity.

This organization declares that it is its purpose to make of the thirteen counties in the Twelfth District an educational power through the co-operation of the parent-teacher associations. The present plan is to have a parent-teacher club in every school in every one of the thirteen counties. The result of such a movement could not fail to result in improved educational conditions in this district.

Clubs in the Churches. In addition to the parent-teacher clubs in the churches and schools, the Twelfth District mothers are gathered in the right way, and are exercising it in the right way. They declare that "mothers are a power; they can make their voices heard, and their action felt; and the legislators and educators will listen to them." On Wednesday afternoon, May 14, the Cochran Mothers' club met in the school auditorium and reorganized. An election of officers as given above was had, and plans of work were outlined. On Wednesday, May 21, Mrs. Anna Stone, Richmond, was elected to the position of secretary, and Mrs. H. H. Hargrave, president of the National Congress of Mothers, lectured in Cochran to a large and deeply interested audience. Her subject was "The Mother's Influence on the Child." Mrs. Richardson, the organizer of the "Mother's Influence" movement, which will revolutionize the problem of infant mortality, is a mother of five children. She is particularly interested in the health of her children, and she has given them practical instructions, suggestions and advice. The occasion was a most successful one, and the mothers were most appreciative.

Mothers Awakened. The organizers of this district branch were aided by the statement that Mr. T. D. Wood, of Columbia university, had declared in a recent report that the children of the country show an increased percentage of both physical and mental defects. It was pointed out that conditions all pointed to the need of an educational movement for the country.

State President Tells Of Aims and Purposes of Parent-Teacher Associations

To the Parent-Teacher Associations and to Many Clubs affiliated with our organization are asking for information. It is to be a movement to benefit is to be gained by co-operation with us. It is to be a movement to benefit is to be gained by co-operation with us. It is to be a movement to benefit is to be gained by co-operation with us.

The National Congress of Mothers is in a position to help you. It is to be a movement to benefit is to be gained by co-operation with us. It is to be a movement to benefit is to be gained by co-operation with us. It is to be a movement to benefit is to be gained by co-operation with us.

Things to Be Gained. Some evident and vital advantages. Doubling the educational service of the school plant by opening up new lines for the meetings of the parents to discuss educational problems.

Notes on Woman's Suffrage. Suffragists all over the country are rejoicing over the fact that after their twenty years' hard work the United States has at last adopted the Nineteenth Amendment. This amendment, which grants the right of suffrage to women, is a landmark in the history of the United States.

The Suffrage Measure. The action has been taken a situation that has not been reached. It is a landmark in the history of the United States. It is a landmark in the history of the United States. It is a landmark in the history of the United States.
